

Clientelism and Public Health: Explaining Variation in Healthcare Services in Three Indonesian Cities

Australian
National University

Department of Political and Social Change Seminar Series

What explains Indonesia's persistent healthcare disparities across different regions? This study examines how everyday politics, particularly clientelism, shapes healthcare delivery in three cities. It reveals how patronage distorts services, identifies factors that insulate health systems from political capture, and highlights contextual conditions that moderate clientelism's impact on health outcomes.

Speaker

Lila Dwilita Sari is a PhD candidate in the Department of Political and Social Change at the ANU Coral Bell School of Asia Pacific Affairs. Her research focuses on clientelism and healthcare in Indonesia.

Details

Tue 3 June 2025, 12.30-2pm AEST
Online (Zoom)

Register

